SUNDAY SCHOOLS NEED BOOSTING

Protestant Churches Will Make Campaign to Check Decreased Attendance

A campaign is being planned by the Protestant churches in Memphis to increase the Sunday school attendance during the summer months. The Protestant Pastors association at their meeting last Monday morning perfected the plan and it is proposed to call Sunthe plan and it is proposed to call Sunday school superintendents and Bible class teachers together one night next week and perfect a campaign organization to project the campaign which contemplates enlisting all of the churches in Memphis and vicinity in the efform to increase the attendance upon the Sunday schools during the menths when there is a tendency on the part of everyone to neglect Sunday school and church.

In addition to organizing a campaign committee, a director and secretary of

In addition to organizing a campaign committee, a director and secretary of the campaign will be selected to hande the publicits and organizing of forces in the various churches, assemble the reports from the various Sunday schools each week and furnish the press of the city with a copy of these reports. The Sunday school showing the largest per cent of attendance during the period will be given some recognition of distinction.

This matter was presented to the Baptist pastors' and superintendents' executive committee meeting on Monday night and they heartly approved the plan. It has been suggested that the last Sunday of the campaign, which will be the last Senday in August, shall be designated as soldiers' day in the Sunday schools and a special effort will be made to have all of the men represented by the stare in the men represented by the stars in the service flags of the various churches at-tend in a body and special exercises will be held in their honor.

rend in a body and special exercises will be held in their honor.

From the following facts it would seem that a campaign to increase Sunday school attendance is absolutely necessary. During hat year, there was a decrease in Sunday school attendance in the Protestant churches of America of more than 120,000. The Sunday schools of the Northern Baptist convention aboved a decrease of $8.405, the schools of the Northern Baptist conven-tion showed a decrease of 88,406; the Congregationalists a decrease of 2,588; the Evangelical association a decrease of 57,442; Frotestant Episcopal, 26,189; the Reform, 16,342; the Methodist Epis-copal, 124,945. There were 525 Sunday schools in the United States discon-tinued and 8,000 superintendents and teachers dropped from the rolls. The above facts were given by Louis A. Hartmann at a recent meeting in Chi-cago, according to "The Biblical World."

Thoughts For The Quiet Hour

Does your life seem useless-vain, Filled with naught but clouds and rain, Ceaseless cares and bitter pain? Make your life count for something:

Do not live in aimless way, Selfishly from day to day, In your work or in your play— Make your life count for something:

Soon your life on earth will cease, From all cares there'll come release, And from sorrows—sweet surcease— Make your life count for something!

The commencement season is again with us Thousands of our young people are happy in the thought that their school days are over for a while, at least, and they can now have a season of rest from the arduous duties belonging to school and college life. There are also thousands who have completed their life at school and are about to enter the great school of life. Therefore, the commencement season is not only a glad and a happy one, but also has its serious side. y one, but also has its serious side. To those have completed their courses of study it means the beginning of real life.

The present age is especially rich in the privileges accorded our young people. Perhaps at no time in the world's history have greater privileges been given them, or greater opportunities presented them. Wonderful changes have taken place in recent years, and somehow we feel that even greater changes await us for the future. These changes, for the most part, have been conducive to the cultivation and employment of our God-bestowed talents in a way that will mean much to the future development of higher ideals, especially among our boys and girls.

One of the most gratifying signs of the times is the emphasis being placed today on the necessity of real service, or, as Mr. Charles M. Schwab recently so well expressed it, "the aristocracy of service." The education which creates a selfish ambition is far more pagan than Christian. It is not only a detriment to the one receiving it, but contrary to the teaching of the world's greatest teacher, who constantly emphasized the fact that He came into the world not to be ministered unto, but to minister—to give to humanity the very best within Him, even to the extent of His life's blood. Our young people are being taught, as never before, that the most successful life is the

The oft-asked question, "Is life worth living?" can be answered successfully in one way, viz.: "That depends altogether on how you live it!" The only worthy ambition for life is to make it worth while. In order to do this, our ideals must be of the highest; then make the best possible use of the talents and opportunities which are given us by an ever-loving God. It must also be remembered that these talents are not only material possessions, but also opportunities of enriching the mind and heart, and using our powers of intellect and influence.

The life worth while will not override the rights of others, but will be governed always by the spirit of service, and the law of love. Someone has said that in every business transaction one man must get the better of another, but no right-thinking man will indorse any such statement. The young man who enters life with any such thought or belief as this will make a most dismal fallure, both for time and eternity. "How can I serve best?" This will be the thought uppermost always in the mind of the man who rightly inter-

The life worth while will also be characterized by a life of faith -faith in God and in our fellow man. Unbelief is making war today, as never before, to weaken and destroy faith; hence eternal vigilance is demanded to thwart its efforts to go "over the top" by the use of all kinds and makes of camouflage. The real worth of a man is in the wealth of his spiritual possessions, the service he renders, and good he is doing in the world. These things come as a reward for our faith. Therefore an abiding faith in God, and a constant effort to do His will will finally win for us the "crown of righteousto follow the life on earth that has been worth while

AN IMPORTANT TRUST

The character of a community is largely dependent upon the individuals of that community. The atmosphere in which we live has much to do with what we are. Good habits mean good morals good morals mean good thoughts good thoughts mean happiness, usefulness and real service. No one person is absolutely without influence. It is not true that a man has a right to do as he pleases with what is his, unless he pleases to do right.

It were well for every man to keep before him the standing question: "What is my contribution to the character of the community, of the character of the community, of which I am a part?" Our churches mean more to our city than anything else. Without them and their influence, no one would care to own a dollars' worth of property within our city limits.
